Pact With Spain Gives Air, Ship Bases to U.S.

"HEY, YOU, GET OFF THE STREET." Air Raid Warden Milton Luhs blows his whistle to clear the streets during history's biggest peacetime air raid test in New York City This nearly-deserted scene is 42nd St. and Fifth Ave. In theory, two atom bombs were dropped on the city and more than one million persons were "killed" Police and civil defense officials called the 15-minute demonstration a 99 per cent success.

Franco Gains Military Help In Agreement

West Defenses To Be Bolstered in Europe By 20-Year Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Spain today signed a 20 year defense agreement giving this country the right to develop and use naval and air bases on Spanish soil and assuring Spain of military equipment from the United States.

The historic action brought Franco's Spain, long shunned by the victors of World War II, into partnership with the United States in the West's defense against the danger of Soviet attack.

Ambassador James C. Dunn and Spanish Foreign Minister Alberto Martin Artajo also signed economic assistance and mutual defense assistance agreements, the latter spelling out the specific conditions under which Spain will receive military aid.

226 Million in Aid

The State Department released the text of the three agreements together with a statement saying that assistance to Spain totaling 226 million dollars will be supplied under the mutual security program during the fiscal year ending June 30

The announcement said 85 million dollars will be for defense support assistance—meaning various uses in some way contributing to the development of military strength—and 141 million dollars for actual military equipment.

While the State Department refused to identify the bases involved in the agreements signed today at Madrid, it was understood there were at least half a dozen. Advance speculation has centered on United States use of naval bases at Cadiz, Cartagena and El Ferrol and air bases in the vicinity of Madrid, Barcelona and Seville. All are described as in need of considerable expansion. Madrid sources also mentioned ports at Valencia, and Mahon on Minorca.

A major aim of the U. S. aid to Spain is to modernize, in some degree and over a period of years, the Franco government's army and naval forces.

30 Divisions

The army is now estimated to include 30 divisions.

The negotiations date formally from March 1952, but informal contacts with the Franco government on the idea were established more than a year earlier.

Franco officially sat out World War II but he was closely identified with the Axis cause.

In December 1946, the United Nations urged its members to withdraw their first-string diplomats from Madrid and to bar Spain from U. N agencies

Change Began in 1950

However, the situation began to change in November 1950, when the U. N. General Assembly revoked this 1946 resolution.

The United States, which had no ambassador in Spain since December 1945—though the embassy was staffed by diplomats of lesser rank—thereupon sent an ambassador to Madrid.

But there was—and perhaps still is—powerful political sentiment in Britain and France against Franco. Hence, there has never been any serious effort to bring Spain into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO)—even though the

Small Cottage Settlements in Path of Storm

Sparsely Populated Section Struck by High Winds and Rain

PANAMA CITY, Fla (AP) — A powerful gulf hurricane swept across the Florida coastline west of here at 9 a m. EST and raked a long but thinly populated area with roaring hurricane winds

Harold Parr, Associated Press reporter telephoning from a Long Beach cottage settlement 15 miles west of Panama City said winds struck with "very great force."

"The wind is shaking the telephone booth so hard I am getting out of here," said Parr, breaking off his call.

Crosses Coast at 9

Grady Norton, chief storm forecaster at Miami, confirmed that the storm center began to cross the coastline at 9 a. m

One small settlement, Shalimar, near Valparaiso, reported winds of about 80 miles an hour, but this was not definitely confirmed by experienced weather reporters, said Norton.

The State Highway Patrol said it believed all residents had been evacuated from the Long Beach area before the storm struck

The center of the tropical storm thundered across an area of small beach settlements on a coastline indented by bays. Inland along its course were a number of small towns, much forest land and a few creeks and rivers which may swell out of their banks with the heavy rainfall.

Heavy Rain

Rain fell in Panama City at a rate of more than an inch an hour, totaling 3.66 inches in three hours as the storm's center moved slowly toward the coast.

No late reports were received from Apalachicola, a fishing town midway between Panama City and the Tallahassee area, which had been isolated by high water The radio telephone in a State Highway Patrol car was its only means of communication with the outside world.

Hundreds of persons were re-

Walter Harvey Identified

Marion Resident Found Dead in Richland County

A man found dead Thursday on the banks of a creek near Mansfield has been identified as Walter A. Harvey, 47, distribution manager for the Standard Oil Co. of Marion

An autopsy performed by Coroner D C. Lavender revealed that Harvey died of natural causes, apparently of a heart attack However, Mansfield authorities were unable to explain how Harvey got to the creek, some two and one-half miles from downtown Mansfield where the discovery of his abandoned automobile aided in his identity

HARRY YOHA of Mansfield discovered the body about 9 30 a m Thursday on the banks of the creek south of Mansfield where he had gone to wash his car. When he realized Harvey was dead, Yoha called Sheriff E P. Long

Investigation by sheriff's deputies revealed that Harvey apparently had been robbed, as his wallet and other marks of identification were missing. One report stated that it was thought that Harvey carried about $100 when he left Marion Wednesday to attend the funeral of a brotner-in-law near Cleveland.

Arthur F Busch, division manager of the Marion office of Standard Oil, reported that Harvey left Marion about 4 30 p m. Wednesday.

WHEN FOUND BY YOHA, Harvey held in his hand his car keys, but authorities could not find his automobile in the vicinity. In the meantime Mansfield police had noted an automobile parked downtown which had accumulated several parking violation tickets

The car's Marion license plates led Mansfield authorities to check with Marion police Friday morning who checked the car's ownership to the Marion division of Sohio Harvey was then identified by a Mansfield Standard Oil Co employe

A widower, Harvey had resided at 569 E Church St He is survived by 19-year-old twin daughters, Dolores June and Dorothy Ann, students at Kent State University

HARVEY, WHO WAS BORN January 23, 1905 in Massachusetts, joined the Standard Oil Co. in 1927. Prior to being named distribution manager of the Marion division two years ago, he had served as service stations supervisor in the Canton office

The body was taken to the Jones Memorial Home in Mansfield from where it will be moved this afternoon to the Pease Funeral Home in Westlake, a suburb of Cleveland Funeral services will be conducted there at 2 p m Monday.

Dean Requests Clemency for Accused Men

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Maj Gen William F. Dean is asking clemency for the two Korean civilians accused of selling him into three years of Communist captivity for $5 rewards

Dean told newsmen just before night that he has cabled President Syngman Rhee of South Korea, asking him to free the two

"I don't know if they are the ones (who turned me in) but if they are they should be freed anyway," he said. "A lot of people were under a lot of pressure at that time"

Dean was captured in August, 1950, about a month after he disappeared near Taejon, South Korea, while rallying stragglers of his overwhelmed 24th Division in the action that won him the Medal of Honor.

Dean also disclosed that he was taken into Manchuria by the Reds for three days in late 1950 when the Allies had all but crushed the North Korean army

The tall, 54-year-old soldier was welcomed back by hometown citizens who knew him here 30 years ago as auto patrolman "Wild Bill" Dean

He was given a standing ovation by some 1,500 people at a civic

U.S.-Russian Clash Expected On U.N. Floor

Vishinsky, Lodge Reported Preparing For Rebuttal Debates

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A new United States-Russian exchange was building up today as the U N. General Assembly took a weekend recess. The fireworks were expected to explode next week with the end of the policy speeches that opened the current Assembly session.

Although the Soviet bloc already has had its five-nation say, Russia's Andrei Vishinsky was reported readying an overall answer to questions raised by more than 40 other members in their opening statements on Korean peace and other areas of world tension Vishinsky follows the practice of asking for the floor at the end of every opening debate—and always gets it

This time, however, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. chief U S. delegate was reported planning to follow him under the Assembly's "right of reply" rule.

The verbal battle was expected to break next Thursday after the nine nations still on the speaker's list have had their say.

Hot Football Rivalry Breaks Out in Bullets

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP) — Football fanaticism in this town of 5,000 has led to the shooting of a policeman and the mauling of a high school fullback.

Shot last night behind the grandstands while a game was in progress was Jack Combs, 26, a Middletown policeman. Franklin Chief O E Chamberlain had requested special police because of the large crowd expected for the annual Franklin-Miamisburg rivalry.

The feud between the two schools broke out in a free-for-all Thursday night, police said, when a carload of Miamisburg youths attacked some Franklin students returning from a pep rally.

Terry Jones Franklin fullback, was crushed against an automobile window His arm was slashed and required several stitches

Combs, shot in the left flank and hip, was reported in good condition in Middletown Hospital.

Police arrested Jack Lakes, 24, of Rt. 2, Franklin. They said Combs caught Lakes and two companions drinking on the high school ground.

Student Denies Plotting Death Of Sweetheart

Schinagle's Defense Will Attempt To Show He Killed in Passion

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—"I didn't plan it ahead of time, and I'm not going to say I did."

That statement by Roy R. Schinagle Jr., quoted by his lawyer, is the 19-year-old Ohio Wesleyan University sophomore's defense to the state's charge that he plotted the murder of his 19-year-old sweetheart, Cynthia Pfeil of White Plains, N. Y.

Schinagle waived preliminary examination yesterday and was bound over to the grand jury, which is expected to act on the case within two weeks.

To Ask First Degree

Prosecutor Harold Roth is expected to ask the grand jury to indict Schinagle for first - degree murder, which requires proof of premeditation and carries a possible death penalty. Roth is expected to produce some letters Schinagle allegedly wrote in an attempt to show he wanted to break off his affair with Miss Pfeil.

Schinagle is accused of strangling Miss Pfeil on the university campus, driving her unconscious body to Upper Sandusky, and and there beating her to death with an iron rod

Defense Atty. R. H. Stansbery said he believes the grand jury will reduce the charge to second-degree murder, which does not require proof of premeditation.

Calls Letter a Ruse

Stansbery said the youth told him he planned to marry Miss Pfeil this week, but wanted it kept secret because both their parents opposed it He said a letter he wrote to another girl saying he and Cynthia were "washed up" was intended as a ruse to help maintain the secrecy He said the other girl was a friend of Miss Pfeil's and he had received only one letter from her.

In a statement issued yesterday afternoon, Stansbery said Schinagle told him that contrary to reports of law enforcement officials the youth had received only the one letter from the other girl, Carolyn Scheid, a student at Wittenberg College. Stansbery said Schinagle told him he believed this was a "fishing letter" to see if he was still seeing Miss Pfeil.

Schinagle also told Stansbery that his incompleted reply to Miss Scheid was an intentional deception to draw attention away from his and Cynthia's plans to be married.

Met Her Only Twice

He also said that he had met Carolyn only twice and both times in the presence of "Cindy." One time, he said, he and Cindy had gone to Wittenburg College and together had taken Carolyn out to dinner. Another time, she came to Delaware and he arranged a date for her with a fraternity brother.

Schinagle's plan a week ago Thursday, he told Stansbery, was to drive Cindy to Columbus the

Takes Place in Theater

Criminal, FBI Man Slain In Baltimore Gun Battle

BALTIMORE (AP)—A West Coast desperado was killed and an FBI agent fatally wounded last night in a blazing gun battle at a downtown movie house.

Most of the movie audience, absorbed with the crime picture on on the screen, didn't realize a squad of FBI men was shooting it out with the trapped gunman.

Another agent was seriously wounded in the battle on the mezzanine of the Town Theater here.

Shot to death in a phone booth as he tried to place a call to Los Angeles was John Elgin Johnson, 34-year-old former bank robber wanted for parole violation and as a murder suspect.

Agent Dies of Wound

Agent J. Brady Murphy, 36, of the local office, was shot in the lower abdomen and died about 4 a. m. today at Mercy Hospital. Agent Ray Fox, 39, was shot in the hip

They were leading a squad of FBI men up the steps when Johnson—being stalled by a Los Angeles operator on his call until officers could get there—suddenly turned and opened fire through the glass door of the booth.

Brady sagged to the floor and his gun rolled under a chair Fox fell backward toward the stairs Other agents moved up emptying their pistols into the booth

Johnson, hit by two bullets in the right side of the chest and one which grazed his face, slumped against the door of the phone booth, jamming it tight.

Pull Him From Booth

"He didn't get out of the booth—not till we pulled him out," said Scott Alden, special agent in charge of the FBI here.

Johnson was dead when he arrived at University Hospital

It was over so quickly only a few theater patrons sensed anything amiss. A small crowd of curious, near the back of the theater where they could hear the shots, was in the lobby when Johnson and the wounded agents were taken out

The movie "I, The Jury"—based on a best seller by Mickey Spillane—had started only a few minutes before.

Record Dates to 1935

One patron Francis O'Brien, said he thought someone "had let off a string of firecrackers." He said the man next to him, however, threw himself on the floor and said someone was firing a pistol.

Alden said Johnson had a record going back to 1935 FBI records show he drew a 15-year sentence for bank robbery in 1941 and was sent to the McNeil Island federal

Fire Destroys Barn; Damage Set at $5,000

Firemen said the barn was nearly burned to the ground and estimated loss to the barn at $3,000 Farm machinery stored in the barn was also burned and loss of macinery was set at $2,000.

Chinese Release Hostage

Indian Chides Prisoners On Hospitality, Ends Riot

PANMUNJOM (AP)—An Indian army major was dragged into a prisoner compound in the Korean neutral zone Friday and held hostage for 90 minutes by angry anti-Communist Chinese prisoners awaiting Red "persuasion" teams, it was announced today.

Ten members of the neutral Indian detachment guarding prisoners who refused repatriation rushed in with sticks and fought for three minutes with some 500 POWs armed with spiked tent poles The demonstration broke out after one prisoner changed his mind and asked to be sent back to the Communists

The flareup subsided and the hostage was released after Maj Gen S P. P. Thorat, commander of the Indian troops, startled the Chinese by asking

"What sort of Chinese are you? Where is your hospitality? You have offered my men neither tea nor cigarets"

The surprised prisoners melted back and a few moments later brought tea, cigarets, and finally the Indian major, identified as H S Grewal.

Thorat said Maj. Grewal was "manhandled and shaken a bit" but not seriously harmed. An Indian spokesman said the Chinese had worked themselves into an emotional state in demanding the return of a fellow prisoner who had been handed over to the Com-

Blow to Balanced Budget

Democrats May Oppose Any Plan for New Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today faced a new threat to its goal of a balanced budget, a possible Democratic drive against keeping revenue even up to present levels

Rep. Jere Cooper (D-Tenn) got out a statement yesterday urging that some eight billion dollars in tax cuts be allowed to take effect as scheduled next year barring any new emergency.

Cooper also announced opposition to any new taxes to make up the loss in revenue.

Cooper is senior Democrat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee and usually works closely with House Democratic leaders.

The Eisenhower administration has asked Congress to cancel a scheduled two billion dollar cut in corporation income taxes and a one billion dollar reduction in excise or sales taxes. Both reductions are scheduled under present laws for April 1.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) of the Ways and Means Committee already has vowed opposition to postponement of tax cuts He and Cooper would make a formidable team. Normally their committee must start all tax bills through Congress.

Accepting the loss of the three billion dollars in revenue involved in these two tax cuts not only would jeopardize plans for a balanced budget but might put more pres-

There'll Be No Dark Valley

Many great hymns have been written by the blind

The man was nearing 70. The woman was nearly 90. Half a century ago it was a common sight in Brooklyn to see the blind man and blind woman sitting on the veranda of a modest home, singing hymns . . . their own hymns, hymns that had brought tens of thousands of penetants streaming down the sawdust trail.

Many of the world's great hymns have been written by the blind. Timothy Dwight, the New England preacher who made a great university of little Yale College and wrote "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord" and 32 other hymns, spent his last years in blindness.

SCOTLAND'S BACHELOR minister, George Masterson, who scribbled the verses of "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go" in five minutes, lost his sight and fiance in college and spent the rest of his life unmarried and blind.

Henry Smart, composer of the music for "Lead On, O King Eternal" and hundreds of other tunes, spent the last 15 years of his life in darkness but never stopped working until the day he died.

Wood Carver William Walford dictated a poem he had "made up in his mind" to a minister friend because he could not see how to write. Set to music, the poem is found in hymnals around the world under the title "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

There'll be no dark valley when Jesus comes,
There will be no dark valley when Jesus comes
There'll be no dark valley when Jesus comes,
To gather His loved ones home.

(Refrain)
To gather His loved ones home,
To gather His loved ones home;
There'll be no dark valley when Jesus comes
To gather His loved ones home.

There'll be no more sorrow when Jesus comes.
There'll be no more sorrow when Jesus comes;
But a glorious morrow when Jesus comes
To gather His loved ones home.

There'll be no more weeping when Jesus comes,
There'll be no more weeping when Jesus comes;
But a blessed reaping when Jesus comes
To gather His loved ones home.

There'll be songs of greeting when Jesus comes,
There'll be songs of reaping when Jesus comes;
And a joyful meeting when Jesus comes
To gather His loved ones home.

THE LIST OF BLIND hymn writers is long. The foregoing is only a suggestion of the contribution to Christian singing left to posterity by the blind.

The blind man and woman on the veranda in Brooklyn sang their hymns . . . hymns that have made their names household words on both sides of the Atlantic. The man was Ira David Sankey, greatest of the evangelistic singers and composer of music for "The Ninety and Nine," "For You I Am Praying" and many another. The woman was Frances Jane Van Alstyne Crosby, known to the world as Fanny Crosby, author of "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour," "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross," "Rescue the Perishing" and more hymn poems than anybody who ever lived, before her time or since.

FANNY CROSBY lost her eyesight as a baby when a mustard poultice was placed over her inflamed eyes. But big baritone Ira Sankey, whose voice could be heard a mile away, went blind in his last years.

In his prime, Sankey wrote a tune for the following poem by the Rev. William O. Cushing and sang it to 50 million people in England and America. And many was the time he and Fanny Crosby sang it together when he was led across Brooklyn to visit his blind hymn-writer friend.

League Meeting Set

Members of the Luther League of Emanuel Lutheran Church will attend a meeting of the Tri-County Luther League Federation at Lutheran Memorial Camp on Sunday afternoon and evening at Fulton. Hosts will be the young people of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Cardington.

A series of lectures explaining the fundamentals of the Christian religion will be given in the educational building of Emanuel Church beginning at 7:30 p.m. Monday. "How May We Know the Christian Religion Is True?" will be the subject of the initial lecture. "Persons who are desirous of hearing an exposition of the chief teachings of the Christian faith are invited to attend," the pastor, Rev. M. E. Hollensen, stated. Parents with children will find that a nursery will be in operation for their convenience. The Monday evening session will adjourn at 9.

Scouts in Service

A Boy Scout Court of Honor will be a feature of the evening service at Trinity Baptist Church on Sunday. A special guest will be C. G. Wheeldon, Scout executive who will make a charter presentation, and a film on Scouting will be shown, in addition to pictures taken on a recent Canadian Scouting expedition. Scouts in uniform will serve as ushers, and the special music for the occasion also will be provided by members of the Scout Troop.

A "hymn banquet" is being planned by the Woman's Society of Trinity Church for Thursday night. The guest speaker will be Mrs. H. V. Falor of the Oakland EUB Church. The missionary circles will plan their menus and their table decorations to illustrate the sentiment in a familiar hymn selected by each circle. The theme of the society for this year is "Sing Unto the Lord a New Song."

Stewardship

A Sermonette

By REV. HENRY SCHAEFFER
Pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church

Luke 16:1 "There was a rich man who had a steward."

Someone recently asked, "What is meant by stewardship" Does it mean that we are to work for the Master?" And the reply was, "Yes, it does mean that we are to work for the Master out of love and gratitude for what He has done for us."

But the stewardship idea comes from the stewardship parables in the New Testament, especially in the Gospel of St. Luke. In Luke 16 Jesus says to the disciples, "There was a rich man who had a steward and charges were brought to him that this man was wasting his goods. And he said to him, Turn in the account of your stewardship, for you can no longer be steward."

IN THE PALESTINE of Christ's day, a third of the land belonged to rich landowners who entrusted the estate to stewards or trustees like the one in our parable. But Jesus was interested in the owner of the big estate and in his dishonest steward or manager only in so far as the story pointed to a higher truth.

Who, then, is the rich man in the parable? To Jesus, He is God, the Creator and Owner of all things in heaven and on earth. This idea is well expressed in such passages as "The world is mine and the fulness thereof" (Psalms 50.12). Both "heaven and earth are the Lord's" (Deuteronomy 10:14). "The land is mine and you are my tenants' (Leviticus 25 23). "The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts" (Haggai 2 8). "Every beast of the forest is mine and the cattle upon a thousand hills" (Psalms 50: 10).

GOD IS THE rightful owner of all things. But He is not a hard master. He is more of a fellow worker than a master. God has been toiling for countless ages, storing up great treasurers and untold wealth of all sorts, not for His own benefit but for the good of His creatures. Jesus says, "My Father works until now and I work" (John 5: 17). Father and Son work, not for themselves but for others!

This idea of stewardship and God's part in it is not unknown to the prophets and psalmists of the Old Testament. It will be no exaggeration to say that most Christians have only a theoretical interest in stewardship as they shy away from any concrete or practical application of it. The reason is not far to seek. The acquisitive or possessive instinct must first be overcome by the grace of God before any attempt can be made to deal with the subject in a realistic and courageous manner. The pulpit and the religious press can be of some help in pointing the way.

THE SUBJECT of stewardship receives greater emphasis in the New Testament than in the Old. The life of Jesus is a beautiful illustration of Christian stewardship. "You call me Master and Lord; and you are right, for so I am. I am among you as one that serves . . . The servant is not greater than his Lord . . . The Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life as a ransom for many." In Him there is no selfish assertion of ownership or property rights in the things of earth on the basis of His unique relation to the Father.

They saying of Jesus, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20.35) is an illuminating commentary on the life of Christ. It is the best practical definition of Christian stewardship that we have and seems to have been spoken in connection with that other saying of the Master, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

JESUS LOOKS upon the gospel as a precious stewardship which must be shared with others. This is also the view of the disciples. They were true to their trust for the most part. What they had received from Christ, they handed to others Had they kept their religion to themselves, Christianity would have perished from the earth.

Who is a steward? We are all stewards or trustees of what God has entrusted to us The Bible plainly teaches that the steward is in no sense a real or absolute owner who can do with the property as he pleases. That was the trouble with the rich fool in Luke 12. He liked to think of himself as a self-made man who owes nothing to God or man. And, besides, who is to say what he is to do with his bulging barns? He had worked hard. But didn't God work too—sending the rain and the sunshine and who had prepared the fertile soil since the dawn of creation? Who made the harvest possible and who gives the farmer a healthy body and a sound mind? "Beware lest you say in your heart, My power and the might of my hand have gotten me this wealth. You shall remember the Lord your God, for it is He who gives you power to get wealth" (Deuteronomy 8: 17, 18).

All that we have is a stewardship—our religion, our time and talents, our earthly wealth and our money. Of course, we must live from what we have. But we must make a conscientious use of what we have and not make the mistake of the dishonest steward who wasted the master's goods.

. . . tomorrow?

Most of us are so constituted that we can never be happy about the problems that face us until they are solved. That's human nature! That's life! And that's why we all realize that it doesn't pay to apply a "do it tomorrow" attitude to life's most serious problems. Death is one of these—and it's always an extremely painful experience for our loved ones when arrangements for burial have to be made after it strikes. It is the acute obligation of each of us to provide an estate for family burial ahead of need, while we are in a financial position to secure it. Do it today . . . tomorrow may be too late.

Church at Cardington Marks 100th Anniversary This Week

Special to The Star

CARDINGTON—This week, the Center Evangelical United Brethren Church, just south of Cardington, has been celebrating its 100th birthday.

The week-long observance started Monday and will conclude Sunday with a combined centennial and annual homecoming celebration. Bishop Fred L. Dennis will speak at the 11 o'clock worship service. At noon, there will be a basket dinner in the church basement and at 2 p.m., the Rev. Jack Stowell of Bascom will speak and show pictures of his recent trip to the Philippine Islands.

The present church building was erected in 1853, but first church services took place prior to that time in a log building which also served as a schoolhouse. There was no regular pastor for many years. The congregation worshiped with a class leader in charge and revival meetings were held.

In 1880, there were 100 members in the church and the congregation had services with a regular pastor. A belfry was added and Sunday School was a feature of the summer months. Next changes came in 1944 when the basement was dug and Sunday School rooms added. In 1952 a new folor was laid in the sanctuary and new pews were added.

During the church's centennial week, pastors from various Ohio towns have been guest speakers at evening services. On Monday night, the Rev. O. M. Martin of Westerville, pastor of the Cardington church from 1925-29, spoke; Tuesday, the Rev. Robert Oler of Chesterville, 1933-37, was the speaker; Wednesday, the Rev Howard W. McCracken of Van Wert, who was pastor from 1940-44; the Rev. Richard M. Ward of Wharton, who served in 1938, spoke Thursday; and the present pastor of the church, the Rev. Burton L. Crosby spoke on Friday.

Confident Living

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Release From Your Anxiety

"The age of anxiety" — so a distinguished poet has described our era. Psychiatrists seem to agree with him. Discussing "the neurotic personality of our time," Dr. Karen Horney said, "There is one essential factor common to all neuroses, and that is anxieties." The eminent psychiatrist, Dr. Smiley Blanton, says, "Anxiety is the great modern plague."

DR. PEALE

My friend, Dr. Charles Allen of Atlanta, Ga., has worked out an interesting technique in dealing with anxiety. Dr. Allen is a long, lanky preacher with a Southern drawl, who combines wisdom with a heart full of kindness. And the way he works with people is best illustrated by the story of a man who came to him filled with anxiety and nervous stress, sent to the minister by a physician who thought that the minister's help was needed.

"Do you take the prescriptions your doctor gives you?" Dr. Allen asked the man.

"Certainly, I do," he replied. "I take them regularly."

"Well, then, you have come to me as to a spiritual doctor. Will you take the prescription I give you?"

—:—

THE MAN LOOKED puzzled and then agreed.

Dr Allen went on, "I want to write you a prescription that will help to heal you of your anxiety and tension." He took a piece of paper, wrote on it and handed it to the man.

It read:

PRESCRIPTION

First thing in the morning read aloud to yourself the 23rd Psalm. Read it slowly, quietly, thoughtfully, prayerfully.

After breakfast, before going to work, read the 23rd Psalm again.

Read it after lunch. Read it before dinner. Read it before going to bed.

Take this prescription for one week.

The man looked at this and protested, "But I grew up in a religious home; I know the 23rd Psalm forwards and backwards."

"That doesn't matter," Dr. Allen insisted. "I want you to read it exactly as I have directed in that prescription."

IN JUST ONE week, that man was much better and in due time was discharged as cured by his physician. He had mastered his tension and anxiety. He had learned, as many of us have, that there is a potent therapeutic power in the words of the Bible.

There is another important factor which must be taken into consideration in relieving anxiety. This is the effect of old sins and wrongdoings. Maybe you haven't done anything wrong in years. Yet, if your old sins aren't forgiven—and if you haven't forgiven yourself—a censor in your mind keeps insisting that you should be punished.

It doesn't matter how long ago a guilt sense developed, your conscience doesn't let you rest. Therefore, whether you are fully conscience of this or not, you are always subconsciously expecting punishment. And, because you are expecting it, you become anxious and perhaps even neurotic.

A FUNCTION OF the psychiatrist is to help the patient uncover the causes of his anxiety. And, when he has done this, it becomes the function of the minister to help the patient find relief through forgiveness. That is one way in which religion and psychiatry work together to offset the unhappy effects of "the age of anxiety."

The trusting, serene faith found in the words of the 23rd Psalm points the way to release from anxiety. And examination and emptying of your conscience can set you free. A human being, constructed as his mind is, must either be perpetually punished by guilt or released through mental catharsis and faith. When thus released, anxiety ceases. So to escape anxiety, one should find in his own way the cleansing of his soul. The marvelous sense of forgiveness brings a serenity and mental peace which drives out anxiety.

Pay-As-You-See TV Ready for Debut

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pay-as-you see television starts operating early in November. Enough potential wonders are claimed for it to guarantee that sponsors, movie producers, pollsters—and perhaps just plain viewers—will be watching eagerly.

The debut of coinbox TV will be in Palm Springs, Southern California winter playground of the wealthy. If you're a consumer you dial channel 6; the picture is scrambled and jumpy. An announcer tells you what the attraction is. To buy, you drop enough coins into a plastic box atop your set to total the designated price. Then the picture becomes clear and steady.

First-run movies will be the initial attraction on the new system. The first may be "Forever Female," a $1,250,000 film starring Ginger Rogers and William Holden. The picture was made by Paramount, which has a half interest in International Telemeter Corp., manufacturer of coinbox TV.

The same film will be shown the same evening in a Palm Springs theater. Either way the viewing price will be the same, perhaps $1.10 or $1.25. But home, telemeter's backers point out, a whole roomful of people can see the show for one admission price.

"Telemeter," says its executive vice president, Carl Leserman, "will offer something better than a sponsor can afford. If it is used in volume, we feel we can give movie producers 75 to 90 per cent of the return. That's why producers are so interested in it."

He said all major Hollywood producers but one have indicated a readiness to provide first-run films for telemeter.

As other coin-in-the-slot attractions he envisions professional and college football, boxing matches and Los Angeles Philharmonic broadcasts.

Prices? "I can see a championship heavyweight fight or the Kentucky Derby at $2," Leserman said. "And kiddie shows for 15 or 20 cents."

For producers, Leserman sees some heady figures: There are 25 million TV sets in the country. Suppose 10 million paid 50 cents each for a one-night showing of a 2-million-dollar movie. More than enough to pay for it in one night.

The plastic box can collect any price from a nickel to $2. If you haven't exact change and overpay, it automatically credits you toward the next show. A collector comes around every month or two and removes a locked drawer from the coin box. The drawer contains the coins you deposited—and a magnetic tape recording showing what programs you saw and how much money, therefore, should be there.

Telemeter could operate from any TV transmitter, and its backers hope the Federal Communications Commission will be sufficiently impressed by the Palm Springs closed-circuit operation to approve a metropolitan-area tryout.

These Days

By George Sokolsky

A document has come into my hands which is a secret instruction to the leaders of the Communist party on the state of the nation and what they should do about it

SOKOLSKY

One section is entitled "Defense of Party's Legality — Vital Aspect of Struggle for Democratic Rights"

The very first sentence of this section reads:

"The defense of our party's legality is not, and must not be allowed to become a partisan concern of the Communists . . ."

IN A WORD, the defense of the Communist party is to be made a United Front activity; innocent elements are to be dragged into the defense. Further it says:

"The failure of the enemy to outlaw the Communist party despite its seven - year offensive is a tribute to the depth of the democratic sentiments of the American people as well as to the tenacious fight back by the Communist party and its members.

"In this respect, the present moment is characterized by the preparation of new blows against the party on the part of the Eisenhower administration through continuation of Smith Act indictments, vigorous application of the McCarran Act, and growing tendencies to press for the direct outlawing of the party."

However, the Communists have found ways of defeating all attempts to make them illegal.

THEY ADMIT that they are suffering from "a fatalist acceptance of the inevitability of the illegalization of the party," and some of their followers have "liquidationist concepts."

Discussing the trials under the Smith Act, the Communists claim certain gains, particularly the dismissal of the indictments against Simon Gerson and Isidore Begun.

Praising some of their members for their great courage in the courtroom, for turning "the prisoners dock into a forum for the militant denunciation of the government's drive to war and Fascism," they, nevertheless, take note of certain weaknesses and shortcomings in the struggle of the party against the Smith Act.

Apparently, some of their lawyers wanted to try the cases according to the rules of evidence, which the Communists call "legalist pressures."

THE PARTY objects to registering as a foreign agent on these grounds

"While the Smith Act prosecutions were directed chiefly at the leadership of the party, the McCarran decision, if enforced will be directed at the party as a whole, while the Smith Act arrests, especially in the second round, showed a tendency to move over to the attack on leaders of non - party mass organizations . . . they were mainly directed against the party . . ."

The Communists lay their hopes now in the so - called liberals This is what they say:

"Hence even supporters of the Truman administration who were passive or neutral in the fight against Smith Act prosecutions can be enlisted in the struggle against application of the McCarran Act, for an end to the prosecutions against those organizations cited; for the Supreme Court acting to throw the McCarran Act citation against the Communist party out as unconstitutional"

THEY INSTRUCT their members and adherents to labor valiantly for amnesty for the Communist criminals who are now in prison.

Already such a movement has made its appearance in a suggestion that those who have been in error should be forgiven — spies, subversives, wreckers — all of them should be forgiven.

"We must explore the possibilities of broadening the fight for amnesty to include amnesty for victims of all repressive, anti-democratic legislation — including T-H victims, McCarran - Walter victims, victims of congressional contempt citations, etc.

"It is beyond doubt that such an approach, if successful, could open the door to wider approaches to the trade unions, national group organizations, etc."

So, what is to be done?

MEMBERS of the party are instructed.

"First of all we must enlist the masses in the fight against FBI harassment, surveillance, intimidation and stool - pigeon activity as part and parcel of the fight against the trend toward a police state and McCarthyism . . .

"Because of the gestapo - like methods of the FBI, the continued exercise of the party's democratic rights, particularly the ability of its leadership to function, has made necessary a major change in the organizatonal structure and methods of functioning of the party and its leadership.

"But this change . . . is being accompanied by less political and ideological mobilization of the membership than usually goes along with the most routine party campaign . . ."

For the first time in the history of the Communist party this instruction admits despairing defeat And for their troubles, they blame the FBI.

Military Men Earn Credits in Social Security

"Men and women who remain in active military service after Dec. 31, 1953, of enter service after that date will get social security wage credits under the old-age and survivors insurance program," Paul D. Snider, manager of the Marion social security office, reported today.

A newly enacted amendment to the law extends the period of military service coverage to July 1, 1955. Persons in service will get $160 a month social security wage credits for each month of active duty until that date Under the previous law, social security military wage credits did not apply to months of active service after Dec. 31, 1953.

Snider pointed out that this amendment to the Social Security Act is of particular value to those who will not complete their period of active military service this year, and to those newly entering military service. It will be of advantage also to some career service persons who completed their 30 years of service during the World War II period and who are still on active duty. They will continue to get $160 a month social security wage credits until mid-1955.

"Another provision of the amended law," Snider said, "extends the time for filing application for lump-sum death payments This is of interest to survivors of service persons who die outside the United States after December 1953 and whose remains are returned to any one of the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands for burial or reburial. Under the amended law, lump-sum payments may be made in case death occurred in active service abroad before July 1955, provided application for the payment is made within two years of the date of burial or reburial.

The social security office in Marion is located at 127 W. Church St. The office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ST. LOUIS

The delegates to the AFL convention here laughed loudly when Vice - President Nixon defended President Eisenhower as a man who never breaks his word.

RIESEL

The delegates to this convention cheered wildly when the thin and gray-faced young vice-president stuck out his chin and said, "This administration will lose the next election and deserve to lose" if at the "conclusion of this administration's first four years in office, the American people conclude it has served the greedy few as the term has been used, to the detriment of the many . . ."

In the noise of the whistling delegates whooping it up for a Republican defeat, they lost the implication of the following words.

THEREIN Dick Nixon went right over the heads of the AFL leaders and spoke to their 10,000,000 members and to the "60,000,000 people who work for a living in this country."

And therein, including the corn which was as high as the GOP elephant's eye, Nixon delivered a speech which will rank with his television broadcast when he was under fire in pre-election days

Dramatically enough, this speech came on the exact anniversary of the famous television broadcast

It was exactly last Sept 23, 1952, that Nixon took to the airwaves to answer charges on his political fund — and he considered the AFL speech as tough a one to get off as the TV talk, he told friends after leaving the AFL convention hall.

NIXON, KNOWING he was among political enemies who were giving him the coldest treatment they've handed any speaker in the past 20 years, unleashed a long talk which sent the AFL's leaders into the corridors afterwards say he was a "clever ——."

Replacing the image of his wife, Pat, with the picture of his working class father, Dick Nixon talked to the rest of the country.

That's why after the pleasantries he deliberately hit at George Meany and Martin Durkin with such statements as:

"What are the interests of the 60,000,000 people who work for a living? What are the interests of the American people?

"Some of you say, 'Well, what counts is the Taft - Hartley law, what counts is the tax bill, what counts is the fiscal policy.' All of those things count but only they count as they affect the well-being of 60,000,000 people . . .

"I say that at the conclusion of our four years in office we will have adopted a program which will have brought to the American people, during that four years, protection for their lives and for their liberties, because I don't believe that any man in America, no man in the world today, is better qualified to lead the free world . . . to victory without a war, than Dwight Eisenhower."

LOOKING DOWN at ex - labor Secretary Durkin, sitting in the first row under a sign reading "Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Trades," the vice - president took on the mightiest of labor men, all 700 of them by saying

"I want a government and I want a country in which this organization and other organizations which are representative of the free labor movement as we know it in America can continue to be healthy and strong and progressive."

From there Nixon went on to his father, whom he described as "a streetcar motorman, a carpenter, an oilfield worker and . . . a pretty good amateur plumber, too, and I might say that in addition to that he was a small country grocer."

THIS WAS the pre - election television technique all over again.

Sentence by sentence, Nixon gave out a speech, sometimes losing control of his temper as the audience froze him, which will read as an effective document when it is reprinted and rebroadcast by the Republicans, as it will be over and over again in coming elections.

All through his talk the President's message, which Nixon read hurriedly because the frigid politeness of the labor leaders was obviously getting under his skin, one motif was obvious:

The President, the vice - president and the new advisers from the old Taft camp now in the White House will fight every insinuation that the organized labor movement speaks for all labor and will hit back at the charge that the administration is anti-labor.

THIS WAS APPARENT in the Eisenhower message, read by Nixon, which said that the "Epithets of anti-labor and anti-industry and the like are worse than empty They are utterly obsolete in a climate of opinion and understanding that realizes the folly of class hostility."

This decision to be conciliatory, if possible, but to write off every section of American labor leadership as a possible ally, should not be overlooked in the current name-calling and the charges and counter-charges by Durkin and Eisenhower that the other is a liar.

The importance of Nixon's speech, it seemed to the AFL chiefs themselves, is that the administration deliberately decided to challenge the labor leaders, to test the political labor leaders' political hold on their followers — to see whether or not this means political suicide!

Concrete Jungle Comes Alive

Big Game Season Opens in Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP)—The fall hunting and trapping season is now on in Manhattan

The denizens of the great concrete jungle foregather at a thousand water holes at dusk—in a dimming light they look better to each other—and begin the night pattern of lite and death in the big city forest.

They call these watering places cocktail parties, but if they water the cocktails very much the creatures present roar about it in resentment for days afterward

Many people claim cocktail parties bore them The truth is the reason they go to them is they are already bored. I love cocktail parties

You can see in two hours the whole story of evolution unwind—backwards The guests arrive as people Three Martinis later they are children, and from then on you can watch them turn from children into animals. Why, it beats Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde

There usually is a new author present, the social lion of the evening But after he was made only two trips to the watering trough, some guests already don't think much of him as a lion, doubt whether he can write his name, and are certain he is acting like a jackass

As to the other birds and beasties —

A middle - aged dowager who strutted like a peacock when someone praised her dress gets mad as a wet hen when she sees her mousey husband has turned into a wolf who paws without pause at a sweet young girl, who is acting like a coy mink in search of a new coat

The distinguished elderly politician is now a tired old buffalo, lowing sadly about how he lost the herd in the last election. Three brokers in a corner have become a bear and two bulls, growling and bellowing about the business future.

The young man from Princeton who would like to work for any or all of them has attached himself like a leech to the group, and breaks out in hyena laughter.

The fat lady on a diet who wasn't going to nip a calorie is wrist deep in the imitation caviar canapes, a dear, friendly hog resigned to her fate

The playboy who thought himself quite a shark is being played for a sucker by a fading actress, whose made-up face has fallen into cow shape except for the tiger glint in her eyes.

The plain, frightened housewife whom nobody talked to is now a barnacle on her husband, and the way he shrugs her off you can tell he's a rat

An ex-matinee idol, secretly fretting over whether his toupee is slipping, looks worriedly around like a wrinkled monkey. An elephant-sized banker complains his feet are dog-tired.

A music composer peers through thick-lensed glasses—an owl confused A ballet dancer springs about like a muscle-bound gazelle

Yes, they are all here at the watering trough, the whole animal kingdom. From the book critic with the long nose—an ant eater looking for a target—to the fashion designer in the zebra skirt

And moving warily amidst the shrieking, howling, coughing, grunting, whining, whinnying, roaring, bellowing, stamping, barking chaos of jungle sounds are the keepers of this meagerie — the waiters, holding out a tidbit to a claw here, a drink to an eager muzzle there.

It's a great place to study animal life, a Manhattan cocktail party.

Politicians Stay Out

Every critic of American government has pointed to the same weakness — that there was no way to keep pressure groups from raiding the treasury by abusing their power at the polls.

Only optimists have dared to believe this could be stopped by popular education, to a point where most of the people would be too well informed to be played for suckers by self-seeking politicans.

The United States is still in the process of learning whether or not the optimists were right.

It is still testing their theory that an informed electorate will be immune to the timeless tendency of politicians to form a plunderbund and make off with the treasury.

The issue lies, as it always has lain, between Americans who think of the common good and Americans who think only of their selfish interests.

It lies between Americans who have ears only for the politician leaders of pressure groups and those who listen attentively to men who still talk about the American dream.

In Boston a few days ago President Eisenhower was talking about the American dream. The occasion was political — a Republican party rally — but the speech was idealistic. Those who followed it attentively noted a resemblance to some of the things said by Thomas Jefferson.

But not everybody followed it attentively. Some followed it only long enough to learn there was no political dynamite in it. This disappointed them. So they contrived an interpretation of one portion of the speech, to make it sound as if President Eisenhower was getting ready to renege on scheduled tax reductions.

This created the kind of sensation that politics thrives on. Before it could be denied by Treasury Secretary Humphrey, a great deal of confusion had been created.

Still more confusion was to be created later by others who criticized President Eisenhower for having made a speech about the philosophy of government instead of a speech with some red-hot promises to pressure groups—something to make the politicians happy.

It is a sad situation when the President of the United States is exposed to this kind of distortion and carping.

Dwight Eisenhower became attractive as a presidential candidate at a time when his countrymen were fed to the teeth with partisan politics. It had been crammed down their unwilling throats 24 hours a day for nearly 20 years.

They liked his ideas about a moral regeneration in America. They liked his unfamiliarity with the strangelholds and eye-gouging of partisan politics.

Millions of them voted for him because he was not the kind of a politician they were so tired of having in public view. He has continued to be what he promised to be — a willing spokesman for the American dream.

The dream transcends the narrow frame of government by presure. It encompasses every thing Americans aspire to do and want to be.

They do not want to be grubby treasury-raiding self-seekers. They do want to be self-reliant, forward-looking citizens of a self-governing republic — men and women with a settled philosophy about freedom and the dignity of man.

Failure to understand what President Eisenhower has meant to millions of Americans who were tired of mere politicians with phony panaceas for problems that are not going to be solved that way can be a gross error—in politics.

Cheaper by the Thousand

When the Department of Defense explained a few days ago that the need for replacement power units in its jet aircraft program had been grossly overestimated, the net saving became available for other costs of the national defense program.

The same possibility of saving now is being discussed in relation to nuclear fission. It is hinted that the cost of producing the new hydrogen bombs will be much less than the original estimate.

The cost of producing A-bombs fell off rapidly once the first bombs had been made. This is a vital fact about mechanized warfare. It can be grasped most firmly by the manufacturing experts now in charge of defense production.

The key to mass production for mass consumption is the ability of producers to cut unit costs as they go from the first model to the thousandth model.

Goods produced for mass consumption take advantage of this saving. That is the secret of mass consumption—low unit price.

But goods for military consumption are not produced under the same compulsion to bring down their price. The ordinary rules of economy never have prevailed in military production, which has been notoriously wasteful.

The greatest single contribution the businessmen-administrators who have gone to work in Washington can make is to apply the low-unit-cost rule to military production. There is evidence they are doing it.

Tip to Union Bosses

Cool Heads Advisable in Fight for Labor Reform

They may have been cool with their hands of applause at the American Federation of Labor convention in their reception of Vice President Nixon, who read a special message from President Eisenhower on labor problems, but it is more important that the labor-union leaders remain cool in their heads as Congress approaches the task of amending the Taft-Hartley Act.

It will not do the labor - union officials any good with the country to accuse a man of Dwight Eisenhower's integrity of having violated his word or broken his agreement, and it would be wiser to accept Mr. Nixon's explanation that what occurred was a "misunderstanding" at the White House concerning the status of the proposals made by Martin Durkin, former secretary of labor, to change the labor-management law.

The President was very well advised to send Nixon to the AFL convention at St Louis and to let him talk frankly in addition to reading a special message.

Mr. Nixon's words implied clearly that the administration is not going to allow any such impression to grow throughout the country as was fostered in speeches earlier this week by labor - union leaders — namely, that the President made and broke an "agreement" just because some members of his staff showed a sympathetic attitude toward some of Mr. Durkin's ideas on amending the Taft-Hartley Act.

If the union leaders want to make an issue of it, there is plenty that can be said by the administration about the real meaning of the amendments Mr. Durkin sponsored.

The facts of political life today, as shown by votes in the last election, are that the rank and file of labor is beginning to be unhappy over dictatorships within trade unions and is beginning to resent the bossism which often prevails.

When the workers really become aware of the absolute tyranny that would have been possible — the control by a clique of union officers of all jobs in certain plants and establishments—they will be grateful that the amendments were stymied.

Those attending an AFL convention are the paid officials of trade unions — the professionals — who are in control of the unions and want to stay in control.

Under a law like the Wagner Act, with the "closed shop," and under the proposed amendments, they could become monarchs and hold the power of life and death over a worker's livelihood.

To delegate such governmental power to a trade union is as wrong as it was for the New Deal to try to delegate it to a "code authority" of industrialists under the NRA.

The administration might well consider, if it becomes necessary, taking the case to the country and explaining in detail how the proposed amendments would have enslaved the worker.

Such a course would be desirable, however, only if the AFL and CIO declare open warfare on the administration and withhold their cooperation from the efforts that will surely be made in the next session of Congress to try to work out an agreement on amendments satisfactory to both labor and management.

The president pointed significantly to the conferences that lie ahead, and it is up to the labor-union leaders to determine whether they are going to be as adamant as they have been in the past when they demanded repeal or nothing by way of corrective amendments. They could have had amendments long before this, but they wanted all or nothing.

Incidentally, the newspaper headlines did not emphasize one of the most important things Mr. Eisenhower wrote in his message to the AFL — something that it took courage to say before such an audience:

"Even though the past six years have revealed a number of defects which should be corrected, I believe that its enactment (the Taft-Hartley law) was a substantial contribution to the quest for sounder labor - management relations. I believe that the experience under the act has conformed its essential soundness."

That doesn't sound like the President is abandoning the Taft-Hartley Act, nor did he in his message pledge himself to sabotage the law by amendments that nullify its basic principles.

Instead, he promises to cooperate in removing clauses that might lead to possible abuses and in adding provisions to expedite the administration of the statute.

The whole story from the administration's standpoint is told briefly in a simple principle which the President suggested in his message might be used as a guide in writing amendments to the existing law.

That principle, as he expresses it, is "to allow freedom for the healthy growth of trade unions, while respecting the legitimate rights of individual workers, their employers and the general public."

What the President hopes to accomplish is to make sure that the Taft - Hartley Act remains a law that does not enslave the worker by making him the tool of union bosses but emancipates him so that his civil liberties are preserved. That's liberalism in its best sense.

Army Life Healthier

By Thomas R. Henry

Every war is healthier than the last one for American troops.

In the Korean conflict the death rate from disease and non-battle injuries was virtually the same as those in the armed services during the four preceding years of peace—and that for disease, alone, was slightly lower.

This record was achieved by Army and Navy medical departments despite the fact that American forces seldom have fought in a more unsanitary environment where there was a higher prevalence of infectious diseases and where extremes of temperature created many serious health problems.

Disease, rather than bullets, has been the greatest scourge of armies throughout the centuries. Only with World War I did the percentage of those killed in battle exceed that of those who died from disease in the American Army.

During the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, the disease-death rate had been much greater.

World War II showed a still further advance in this direction and it has been continued in Korea. Though the disease rate sank somewhat lower than that for peacetime, the difference was made up by a slight advance in deaths due to accidents which are inevitable during any campaign.

The average non-battle death rate in the Navy and Marine corps during the three years 1950 to 1952, according to an analysis in the Armed Service Medical Journal, published through the Defense Department, was 1.6 per thousand from injuries and .3 from disease. In the last war the corresponding rates were 2 and .5 per thousand, respectively.

The battle - death rate also dropped materially from World War II—from 8.9 per thousand per year to 3.5 per thousand. Little significance can be attached to this, however, because of the different nature of the Korean fighting and the long periods during which the majority of troops were not in actual combat.

During World War II many deaths were due to exposure to cold. These were cut down notably in the Korean conflict by better equipment, better medical treatment, and better instruction of both officers and men in proper precautions, according to the report. Protective and sanitary measures not only greatly reduced losses from epidemic diseases among the troops, but among the Korean civilian population, as well.

Boston Speech Omitted Vital Points

By Raymond Moley

When, after all of FDR's associated speech architects had submitted ideas and the chief of the architects with the President himself had made a draft, Steve Early, a real newspaperman, would be called in.

"Steve," Roosevelt would ask, "what's the news headline in this speech?"

If, after reading it over, Steve said there was no "story," the speech - writers went back to work.

Somehow, a speech had to establish what President Eisenhower's fancy writers in the best "Fortune" style would call "a beachhead of ideas."

Apparently in preparing the recent Boston speech this rudimentary procedure was not followed. As an exercise in style, the President's scribes served him well.

But as a document which should serve to aid congressional members of his party, who are at home explaining things to their constituents, it was wholly negative.

It was obviously the work of White House speech - writers who lack the capacity of fitting the speech to the man. In no way did this polished essay sound like the sturdy, rough - hewn, plain-spoken man who delivered it.

In short, Eisenhower is better without speech-writers than with them — at least these speech-writers. This speech would have fitted Stevenson. It made a mockery of Eisenhower.

To illustrate the lack of substance, I offer two examples.

Farm policy is troubling voters in half the nation. Republican Congressmen, back among those unhappy voters, are having hard going.

The speech-writers vouchsafed only half a sentence on the subject. "We have used the legitimate and necessary authority of the Federal Government to steady farm prices, meanwhile blueprinting the extension of Social Security coverage to more than 10,000,000 unprotected citizens."

The conservation of natural resources and socialized electric power are going to be a major issue next year. This is what the speech said: "Dedicated to the fullest use of the nation's resources for the welfare of all, we have redefined policy on public power to assure the maximum of local participation and decision in projects that require the partnership of national, state and local governments."

On both of these subjects there is need for plain speaking, not necessarily promises of more subsidies for farmers and free electricity for all, but clarity about what objectives the administration is seeking and how it proposes to reach those objectives. The words of the speech are only irritants, not, as they were intended, emollients.

It is a bit sophomoric to define a vital party faith with such platitudes as "We are a nation."

Then, three sentences later, as if it had not been made clear that the President believes us to be one nation, it was repeated: "We are one nation and one people."

And then: "We believe in people, in all the people." And: "The supreme belief of our society is in the dignity and freedom of the individual." Then, lest this be misunderstood: "This sovereign faith of ours in the freedom and dignity of the individual is infinitely more than a dry and lifeless doctrine."

This essay may have been intended to serve Eisenhower's party as a credo, but it will do little to help that party as it faces the trials of 1954.

Republicans will need more meat and less dignity than this.

Cotton Corners

By TRUMAN TWILL

Dear Nephew: I'll hate myself in the morning for thinking such a thing. But tonight as I sit down to write to you I think we must be ready for Noah again.

An experience I had yesterday was the straw on the camel's back. I got into an argument with some of my friends on the school board. You remember that report I was going to turn in on the teaching of civics courses in high school? I turned it in.

They passed around copies and took the matter under consideration last night. They did not see any merit in it. I didn't expect them to see merit in it because I told them the truth and they didn't want the truth.

The truth is that our government is drifting into a worse mess by the day because children are not being told how it really operates. Instead, they are being told how it might have operated if many generations of determined men and women had not "improved" on the original plan.

If a civics teacher were to tell the truth about government, there would be the dickens to pay. The teacher would be looking for a new job. His superiors would have to cluck that they didn't know what could have happened to make the guy go off his rocker.

The school board would have to apologize. There would be an uprising of major proportions. I knew that when I made my recommendations. I expected the worst. What floored me was the promptness and bitterness with which the worst was forthcoming.

They jumped me for being a commie. They made me feel I was not respectable and should be combed over for red lice by the FBI. The board member I like least, no names mentioned, muttered through his dentures about turning me over to Sen. McCarthy for some pointed questions because I was out of step.

There were other matters before the board. Windows were being broken by juvenile vandals. Some indignant parents were squawking about having their children vaccinated because they didn't believe in it — the parents, not the kids.

When I got home, the highway patrol was cleaning up one of the worst traffic accidents we've ever had at the Corners. Three persons killed outright and two more not expected to be worth saving, according to a report from the hospital late this afternoon. It was an accident that didn't have to happen, either.

Both cars were being driven too fast for safety, one driver made a mistake and crunch! It happens all the time.

Throw in a few murders, the news from the United Nations, the news from Korea and that sordid business about AFL delegates having to be restrained from walking out on the vice president of the United States after he had been invited to speak to them and it's enough to make an old sour-puss like me want to be sick in his hat.

When I wake up tomorrow morning I'll feel all right. I've just had an overdose of people, that's all. It has turned my stomach.

Your aunt is disconsolate. Her strawberry preserves turned sour. That is where she has it all over me. Her troubles are impersonal. It's hard to stay mad at strawberry preserves for turning sour. You dump them and start over next year. Like Noah.

When are you going to come up this way for a weekend? It's a long time before Thanksgiving. You don't want to wait that long, I hope.

Special Memory

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Edward Barton, custodian of safe deposit vaults at Union Trust Co., says it's no trick at all to remember 5,000 names and faces. He proved it the other day by remembering the name of a man who had been away seven years.

Barton, 13 years at his job, works his memory trick this way. When a customer comes to the vault room his mind recalls the number or position of the man's box. The name comes by association.

"I started by remembering the numbers and locations of the dozen or so directors' boxes," he says, "and just accumulated the rest."

But Barton is not infallible. Sometimes on his way home to West Suffield, Conn., he forgets errands his wife asked him to do. And once for the life of him he couldn't remember his automobile registration number.

Mule Foal Expected

SYDNEY (AP)—An Australian mule is expected to give birth to a foal soon. The mule is a six-year-old named Jenny, and is owned by Fred Johnson of Warren, New South Wales.

A mule had a foal in the Northern Territory of Australia last May, and, as far as is known here, that was only the eighth such foal recorded in the world.

A mule is a hybrid offspring of a horse and a donkey, and is usually sterile.

The Senator Takes the Stand

("Senate subcommittee will probe juvenile delinquency" —News item.)

Q.—Senator, you propose an investigation to see what causes the alarming juvenile delinquency in America?

A—I do.

Q.—Have you a video set in your home?

A—I have.

Q—Haven't you noticed the programs blueprinting crime, playing up the baddies and sparing no detail of horror techniques?

—I have.

Q—Has the fact that millions of kids see these programs, and can't avoid them if they don't go to bed immediately after supper, escaped you?

A—No. That is clear to everybody.

Q—You are aware, are you not, that despite the seal of good practice flaunted by the telecasters, and regardless of their annual pledge to consider the welfare of the young, there are more crime programs than ever being pumped into the American home, with the gory details as complete as ever, even to highly advertised reproductions of famous and especially ignoble crimes?

A—Uhuh.

Q—You don't need a Senate inquiry to bring out these things, do you?

A—No, I guess not.

Q—What about summoning for public identification some of the upright, well-educated, influential and powerful men in great corporations who sponsor many of the crime programs, support them by enormous appropriations and put the interests of the kids behind their zeal for an effective sales pitch?

A—You have something there. But I can't promise much.

Q—Why not?

A—Oh, you know very well the usual practice is to forget these birds and concentrate on the authors, actors, directors, advertising agencies and TV officials.

Q—There wouldn't be many of these crime programs on the air if the money of these big corporations didn't make them possible and keep them going, would there?

A—Certainly not. Money makes the nightmare go on.

Q—Haven't the great men behind these sponsorships any kids of their own?

A—It's hard to think so. We may look into that. Do you contend that TV and radio crime programs are alone responsible for the shocking amount of crime by the kids all over America?

Q—No, but I am contending it is a top cause and that the American home needs swift protection now that every living room is a target for dramatic presentation of mayhem, manslaughter, murder, arson, safe-cracking, stickups and general racketeering. Have you any children, Senator?

A—I have and they are getting more information about criminal routines in a single evening than could otherwise be obtained through years of association with convicts.

Q—That goes for my kids, too, Senator. What's all that noise outside?

A—That's the TV and radio people and big sponsors denying that American homes are being flooded with criminal routines, expressing a fear of censorship and belittling all critics, all probers and the fears of all parents.

68 New Members Join Country Club

Reports presented at a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Marion Country Club showed 68 new members enrolled to date this year.

The newly-installed pool, which was a popular spot this year, and increased patronage of the dining room, which reached a new high, this season, are responsible for bringing the club's finances in the clear for the year, President Edwin J. Kinter's report showed.

A review of the financing of the pool showed an over-expenditure of around $11,000 more than was anticipated. Unexpected, as well as unavoidable expenses, including the necessity of installing a drainage ditch, extra fill and additional labor accounted for almost 60 per cent of the additional cost, the pool committee's report showed. Cost of the pool and facilities was $54,541.95. A drive is being launched in the membership to obtain loans, deductible from dues over a period of 10 years, to cover the expenditure.

Harding Clips Bowling Green in Buckeye Loop Tilt

Bobcat Miscues Set Up 3 First-Half Touchdowns

By JOHN SHORT

Harding pushed over two touchdowns in the opening four minutes of play last night against Bowling Green, added one in the second period and then the defensive team took over for a 20-0 win The game marked the opening of play in the Buckeye League

Two Bowling Green miscues set up the first Harding scores, the first coming on the kickoff. John Obenour kicked to Farrell Johns at the five and he returned to the 30 where he dropped the ball. Whitey Clinger recovered for the Presidents at the 33.

Chet King and Gary Ballinger alternated in carrying the ball to the 23 from where Don Schweinfurth hit Joe Albinack with a 17 yard pass to put the ball at the six. Ballinger cut through the line on the next play and scored when Abner Thomas cut down the only Bobcat tackler with a chance at the ball carrier. John Obenour missed his attempt at the point

Johns also fumbled the next kickoff but managed to retrieve the ball at the 10 and returned it to the 21 The Bobcats, however, managed to retain possession for just two plays. Johns plunged for 12 yards and then hit tackle and fumbled. Larry Harper fell on the ball for the Harding crew at the BG 34

Ballinger plowed for 14 yards before Schweinfurth handed off to King who went over tackle for the final 20 Obenour converted to give the Prexies a 13-0 lead with less than four minutes played

The Presidents' attack was bottled up during the remainder of the first period but came to life the first time it gained possession in the second.

Jim Whaley and Bob Hamor teamed up to block a punt by Walt Buckhardt at the 32 to set up the clincher. Three plays carried to the 32 but a Harding fumble was recovered by the Bobcats at the 24. Their first play also resulted in a fumble and Hamor recovered for Harding. King cut through the line and weaved for the touchdown without a hand touching him. Obenour added the point to wind up the scoring.

Harding's rock - like defense again proved to be a big factor in the Prexies' second win Bowling Green, playing with a woefully weak line, but a lot of hard-running backs, managed to pick up a total of 95 yards during the evening. The visitors failed to reach Harding territory once during the game, Th Bobcats managed to move the ball to their own 48 but were stalled when a try for the first down was stopped by Hamor, Thomas and Harper.

Bob Prater, another defensive stalwart for the Prexies, was shaken up in the first period. He was injured during a pileup and was out of action during the last half

Although his injury was not believed serious he was in City Hospital today under observation.

Tom Hazen a sophomore, handled the punting for the Prexies last night. He punted twice, once for 46 yards and one for 42 for an average of 44 yards Coach Pete Howison said after the game, that Hazen had volunteered to try his hand at kicking Prior to that the coaching staff knew nothing of his kicking ability.

—.—

Bob Prater, who suffered a head injury was still groggy after the game. Lying on a locker room bench and suffering from chills, Bob was worried about one thing "Who won" was the first thing he asked his teammates after the gun.

—.—

Tiffin Columbian, Harding's opponent next week, rolled by Port Clinton 20-18 last night. Bowling Green whipped the same team 32-12 in its opener last week In other games last night involving Buckeye League teams, Fremont rolled over Lorain 25-0 and Fostoria whipped Cuyahoga Falls 7-6

Upper Sandusky Defeats Willard

UPPER SANDUSKY — In their first Northern Ohio League encounter, Upper Sandusky drubbed Willard 39-12 in a game at Willard last night

Good blocking plus good defensive play gave Upper the edge First TD came on the fifth play when Dave Kuenzli picked up a Willard fumble and crossed the goal line. Kuenzli was also credited with the longest scoring run of the game — a 17-yarder on a reverse for the second Upper TD

Willard picked up TDs in both the second and fourth quarters and threatened to score again seconds before the final gun but were held in check at the four yard line by Upper's defense On first downs Upper marked up 14 while Willard scored 9

Hayes Admits Buckeyes Hold 'Slight' Edge

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Wayne (Woody) Hayes, Ohio State grid coach, admitted today he thought his Bucks "had a little edge" over Indiana's invaders in their Western Conference maugural.

"We feel that Indiana is improved over last year," Hayes said, "but I believe we have just a little too much of 'em '

The Hoosiers and Bucks were slated to crack open the Big Ten campaign this afternoon before more than 75,000 fans in the Ohio Stadium

Two years ago the underdog Indiana crew swept over Ohio 32-10, but last season dropped a 33-13 verdict to the Bucks after being even at 13-13 going into the final session.

Bernie Crimmins youthful mentor of the Hoosiers, said he had to agree with Hayes that the Bucks had an edge, but insisted he had a pretty fair running attack and that his boys could cause some trouble

"You just can't tell about anything until we take a look at the boys playing both ways," Crimmins said "We're in good shape, physically and mentally and it should be quite a ball game"

Ohio with not too much backfield depth, will rely on the pitching arm of John Borton to bring home a victory Last season Borton completed 115 of 196 attempts for 1 550 yards and 15 touchdowns, one of the country's better marks.

Dean Dugger, Buckeye end, has been ill most of the week and spent most of Friday in a hospital, but he was expected to be ready to go

TOUGH GRIND

PLACERVILLE, Calif (AP) — The national wheelbarrow race held here annually is one of the toughest sporting events in America. The race is run over a gruelling 60-yard obstacle course impeded with shovels, sacks, 80-pound wheelbarrows and 50 pounds of gravel. Obstacles include a gravel pile where empty sacks must be filled, a log pile, two four-foot fences, a "sluice box" filled with boulders and a "flume crossing."

Redlegs Take Look at Two Rookie Stars

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two of the Cincinnati Redlegs' best prospects for 1954 will see action today and tomorrow as the club closes its season against the Milwaukee Braves.

Wally Post, who pounded the ball at vital times when the 'Legs played Wednesday, will be in right field. Ed Bailey will catch at least one of the games. Bailey, like Post, is a terrific hitter. He it 20 homers for Tulsa.

The pitching chores today will be handled by Bud Podbielan for the hosts and Bud Buhl for the visitors.

The Redlegs also announced the purchase of outfielder Jim Bolger from Tulsa and pitcher Harold Valentine from Columbia, S C.

Al Rosen Likes Leadoff Spot, Goes 4 for 6

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stocky Al Rosen, aiming his hefty bat at becoming the first Clevelander in history to win the triple batting crown, gets to lead off the Indian batters again today.

Manager Al Lopez moved his top slugger into the first spot last night to give him more chances to swing and the third baseman responded with two homers and two other blows as the Tribe dumped Detroit, 12-3

His 42nd and 43rd homers pushed him one ahead of Philadelphia's Gus Zernial in that race. His 4-for-6 batting jumped his average to .332—one point less than Washington's Mickey Vernon. And the four runs he batted in boosted his lead in that department. He now has 144 RBIs.

Rosen's 43rd four-base blow set an all-time Cleveland record, the previous mark of 42 being posted in 1936 by Hal Trosky.

All that slugging overshadowed a nifty pitching job Dick Tomanek, a 22-year-old rookie just up from Indianapolis

With only three games left on the schedule, Lopez called up the ex-Marine from Avon Lake to show what he could do in the big leagues. Tomanek, who won 13 and lost 8 for the American Association team, gave up only 6 hits and struck out 6 while issuing five walks.

Dave Hoskins (8-3) pitches today against Detroit's Al Aber, a former Indian who owns a 4-4 record.

Irish Gridders Face Veteran St. Rose Squad

St Mary plays host to Lima St Rose tonight at Harding Stadium and will be facing the same backfield which last year racked up a 25-12 decision over the Irish.

Ernie Bonanno, 140-pound halfback, will be running from the same spot from which he scored two touchdowns against St Mary last year. One of his scores came on a pass play covering 63 yards while the other was scored from inside the 10 Don Hullinger, St Rose fullback, hit paydirt in last year's tilt on a 36-yard gallop and will be back for another try. Veteran Quarterback Ron Klaus will be seeking to repeat last year's performance when he directed the team to the win and added the final TD with a four-yard plunge

Ray Robbins' Irish squad will be playing without the services of the only man to score last year against the visitors Butch Merchant raced for both St Mary scores but is lost to the team for the season since he injured a knee against Cardington last week

Carrying the load for St Mary will be Larry Ryan at fullback, Ted Kilbury and John Messenger or possibly Mike Anderson at the halves, and Roger Micheli in the quarterback post On the line will probably be Pat O'Connor and Don Shoemaker at ends, John Kelly and Ed Quinn at tackles Jerry Ballenger and Bob Campton at guard and Jack Schnetzler at center

The Bird-McGinnis American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will entertain at the halftime intermission. The Corps will form at the St. Mary School and will march to the stadium. The group will present the same routine used at the state convention of the American Legion at Cleveland.

Parnell Leads List

Final Night Session Sees Several Records Equalled

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

The major leagues used their last big night of the 1953 season to write a whole hatful of records and best performances into the books

In most instances it was a case of "the best since" or "the first since instead of just plain "best" or "first" but it still is quite an impressive list There was something in every game

Lefty Mel Parnell of the Boston Red Sox joined the great Walter Johnson as the only pitchers to shut out the New York Yankees four times in a season. Johnson did it in 1908. In beating the New Yorkers 5-0 Parnell also became the first pitcher to whip them five times in one year since Casey Stengel took over as manager five years ago

The Chicago White Sox scored their 87th triumph at the expense of the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns 7-2 and assured themselves of their best won and lost record in 33 years despite a third place finish.

The pennant-winning Brooklyn Dodgers won their 104th game, 4-3 over Philadelphia, equalling the all-time high in victories by a Dodger team.

Al Rosen continued his hitting rampage for the Cleveland Indians. He smashed his 42nd and 43rd home runs as he broke the Cleveland homer record at the expense of the Detroit Tigers who bowed 12-3. Rosen also got two other hits and moved within one point of Mickey Vernon of Washington, the American League batting leader.

Harvey Haddix became the first rookie on the St Louis Cardinals to win 20 games since Johnny Beazley in 1942. He breezed to an 11-2 victory over Chicago with the help of 19 hits, four of them by Red Schoendienst.

Bob Porterfield pitched his ninth shutout and his 22nd victory as Washington edged Philadelphia 1-0 with a ninth inning run. Porterfield is the first Washington pitcher since 1933 to win as many as 22 games

Al Dark of the New York Giants set a National League record for home runs by shortstops when he hit his 23rd of the year in the Giants' 6-2 triumph at Pittsburgh. The old mark of 22 was set by Glenn Wright of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1930

Milwaukee and Cincinnati weren't scheduled

Galion Pitcher Ranks First With Cleveland's Farm Team

Seif first signed a contract with the Cleveland Indians in June, 1952, and that summer played with the Wisconsin State League at Green Bay, Wisc, a class D team of the Indians The Moorehead-Twins team this summer was a class C team.

A 20-game winner, Ray this season was in 31 games. He started 27, and completed 23 He lost only five games, winning 20, pitched 256 innings; gave up 96 runs, 69 earned; allowed 219 hits; walked 92; struck out 163; and had an earned run average of 2 42. This was the best percentage and best earned run average of a player in the Indian farm system.

Ray's team won the pennant in the Northern League The team also won the play-off last week with Duluth Ray won two games in the playoff

An outstanding athlete at Galion High School in both basketball and baseball, Ray was All-Ohio forward in 1951 when he graduated. He also made the All-Northern Ohio League team.

Big Walnut Wins From Mt. Gilead

MT. GILEAD — Boo Whisman, Big Walnut quarterback, scored all three touchdowns here Friday night as the visitors humbled Mt. Gilead 23-7. It marked Mt. Gilead's second loss in Mid Buckeye Conference play.

Whisman scored the first on a sneak from the three following recovery of a Mt. Gilead fumble there. He sneaked three yards for another in the second after Big Walnut intercepted a Mt. Gilead pass and put it in play at the Mt. Gilead 17. Whisman scooted six yards around end following a drive from Big Walnut's 42 yard stripe.

A 70 yard pass play resulted in Mt. Gilead's lone tally. Gene Brush threw a 10-yard aerial to Fred Jolley, who ran the remaining 60 yards. The same combination clicked for the Mt. Gilead conversion.

Big Walnut recorded a safety late in the tilt when John Staley, the Mt. Gilead fullback, was caught in the end zone. Carroll Meadows booted the three Big Walnut extra points.

Among speakers to be heard Monday is India's V. K. Krishna Menon. He is expected to reiterate charges by Indian Prime Minister Nehru that the Assembly is ignoring Asian opinion in dealing with Asia's problems.

Nehru also has strongly criticized the United States for opposing India's participation at the Korean peace conference.

Menon has emphasized in recent weeks that India is anxious to get the scheduled peace talks underway because it doesn't want its 5,500-man prisoner repatriation guard tied up indefinitely in Korea He has given no hint, however, whether he will support Communist demands that the peace conference include Russia, India, Burma, Pakistan and Indonesia as "neutrals" in what the Reds insist should be a "round table" conference.

Educators Wind Up 2-Day Conference in Marion

School Officials Study Classroom Practices At Zone Meeting

Moving into its second and final day, the annual zone conference of the Associated Public School System was resumed at 9 a.m. at the Robert A. Taft Junior High School.

The conference began Friday morning at Hotel Harding where the theme, "Measuring the Quality of Education," was explained by Dr. Norton L. Beach of New York, executive secretary of APSS and administrative staff member of Teachers College, Columbia University.

FOLLOWING LUNCH, conference delegates went to Edison Junior High School for participation in six study groups concerned with subjects such as community relations, the developmental research program, economic base of education, budgeting as a continuous process of community involvement, pooling and sharing, and the citizenship education project.

At 4:30 conference delegates were honored at a reception and tea at George Washington Elementary School. The opening day's program came to a close with a dinner at 6 p.m. at the Harding High School cafeteria.

Taking the delegates on a verbal trip into outer space, the evening's speaker, Dr. John D. Krouse of the electrical engineering department, spoke on the subject of radio astronomy.

In presenting background information on astronomy, Krouse reduced the solar system into comprehensible figures and sizes for comparative purposes. In referring to his topic, Krouse told the group that the first research in that field was started in 1932 by Karl Jansky who used a rotating antenna to determine the direction of static as coming from the center of our galaxy.

WHEN REPORTING his findings before a professional gathering in Detroit in 1934, Jansky was joined in his interest by Grote Reber, a radio engineer of Wheaton, Ill., who built a radio telescope in his backyard to study radio waves. With this telescope, Reber was able to chart stars invisible to man and thus lay the ground work for today's science of radio astronomy.

In use at Ohio State, Krouse told his audience, is a radio telescope equal in power to the world's largest optical telescope at Mt. Palomar, Calif. This radio telescope picks up radio waves and transmits them to a giant receiving set.

The telescope's ultra-sensitive antenna, he told the group, scans the skies and records on moving tape the presence of celestial formations. He termed a radio telescope as "the most important tool at man's disposal for observing objects in the distant reaches of the universe."

Research, an expression of man's curiosity as to the nature of things, is an important part in the world today when man can learn to apply the phenomena of the world, Krouse said.

"Man's development must follow God's plan," the speaker concluded, "and it is man's job to implement it."

—:—

KROUSE ILLUSTRATED his talk with slides of the radio astronomy laboratory of Ohio State, and he was assisted in the presentation of his talk by G. G. Skitek, also of the university's department of electrical engineering.

In a series of afternoon meetings at Edison Junior High School, the Ohio educators and lay persons interested in schools shaped plans for carrying on research and using its results to improve school programs.

The APSS, a nation-wide organization of school systems joined together to stimulate the improvement of educational practices, is to provide leadership and coordination for the collection and analysis of facts about member communities and their schools.

Marion and other Ohio zone member schools will have access to information the APSS member schools across the nation are gathering on programs, staffs, expenditures, community characteristics and related topics.

ACTION TO improve school porgrams and community conditions for education is expected to follow in 1954 and 1955, Beach told the assembled educators in the preliminary morning session at the hotel.

A spring meeting in the Ohio zone is planed to draw together and evaluate early attempts to use research results.

A group meeting in another session began to consider purposes and techniques for bettering relations between schools and their surrounding communities.

Twenty lay persons and schoolmen heard teachers explain promising classroom practices and how these newly-discovered practices could be pooled and shared through APSS machinery, such as the bi-monthly magazine, "Know-How."

The economic base of education and points at which education can affect the wealth of a community were considered in another session. Here it was pointed out that whereever schools have chosen some small aspect of local economic endeavor and have worked to raise its level, dramatic changes have usually followed.

IN STILL another study group, educators learned that the citizenship education project, originating at Columbia University, has become influential in shaping similar programs throughout Ohio. Representatives of these schools spent the afternoon studying devices for helping students become more effective, more alert citizens, and discussed ways to expand the role of the project in their communities.

Acting as study group leaders were Frank Buchanan of Urbana, Eileen Cozart of Steubenville, Woodrow Purdy of Urbana, John Blackford of Mariemont and Walter Crewson of Hamilton.

Registering for the conference were delegates from Ashland, Bowling Green, Hamilton, Lakewood, Mariemont, Marion, Norwood, Ottawa Hills, Shadyside, South Euclid, Lyndhurst, Steubenville, Sylvania, Urbana, Willoughby, and Zanesville.

—:—

PRESENT FROM the APSS administrative staff, in addition to Dr. Beach, were Dr. Mitchell Brickell, research associate; Dr. John Polley, staff member; and Charles Turner, staff member.

In charge of registration were James Hill, principal of Silver Street School. Raymond Silver, principal of Olney and Oakland Heights Schools, and Miss Clara Alice Wilson, principal of Pearl Street School.

In charge of the arrangement of displays on the mezzanine floor of the hotel Friday morning was Paul Bingman, principal of North Main Street School. These displays, provided by visiting delegates, depicted techniques used to improve the instructional program of schools.

Miss Philomen Gregg, principal of George Washington School, headed the committee in charge of the reception and tea at the school yesterday afternoon. She was assisted by members of the school's PTA.

RALPH M. GANTZ, superintendent of Steubenville schools, served as chairman of this year's conference. At the dinner Friday evening he introduced visiting delegates and guests. Among the delegates was A. C. May, principal of Steubenville Senior High School, former principal of Harding High School.

Study group sessions were to be resumed this morning at Taft Junior High School and summary reports were expected to be made following the noon luncheon.

Auxiliary Patrol Aids Fellow Hurt In Auto Accident

Auxiliary state highway patrolmen from Marion helped make a success of the fund raising campaign conducted on behalf of a fellow member injured in an auto accident.

Major Walter Axthem of 286 Elm St., an auxiliary official, presented the injured man, James Perrine, 28, of Huron County, a check for $950 Sept. 16. Perrine was injured while riding with Patrolman Fred Plaul of the Norwalk Post Jan. 30.

The two were chasing a truck on U. S. Route 20 driving without lights when they collided with a car driving on the wrong side of the road. Two women were killed in the accident and seven others in the car were injured.

Both Perrine and patrolman Plaul were injured. Perrine was unconscious for several weeks and since then, has spent much time in various hospitals. Auxiliary patrolmen from throughout the state contributed to aid the financial situation of Perrine, who was ineligible for state compensation.

Along with the $950 check presented by Axthelm, Perrine also received a check for $330 from Lieutenant W. B. Spence of the state patrol at Bucyrus. This money was raised from highway patrolmen throughout the state.

Major Axthelm said the state auxiliary eventually hopes to raise a contribution of $3,500 for the injured man. The Huron County auxiliary post took up up a separate donation and presented it to Perrine before the two other checks were given last week.

Until the state General Assembly passed a bill July 1 giving state aid to auxiliary patrolmen, there was no provisions for compensation of injured men.

Rains spread out ahead of the hurricane. The Weather Bureau reported rainclouds were scudding into Georgia and beginning to penetrate South Carolina.

High tides and pounding waves raked a long beach area and at Panacea, 25 miles south-southwest of Tallahassee, a pier appeared to be breaking up and falling apart.

Capt. Toby Bass of the highway patrol said waves eight to 10 feet high pounded beaches west of Panama City and seethed within 10 feet of tourist cottages.

$112,500 Suit Filed Against Treasury Chief

CLEVELAND (AP)—A personal injury suit asking $112,500 damages from Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey was filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday by Mrs. Thelma Pierce of suburban Moreland Hills.

Mrs. Pierce was injured in an auto accident involving her station wagon and Humphrey's car in Hunting Valley April 19, last year. Humphrey's home is in Kirtland Hills, another Cleveland suburb.

The woman's petition said her right leg was amputated when it developed a bone disease after the accident. The leg and her right arm were broken in the collision.

She contended Humphrey's car was in the center of the road as he drove over the crest of a hill, declared he was traveling at an excessive speed and failed to exercise ordinary care.

Appeals Court Orders Another Hearing of Suit

Reversal of a decision in a suit in the Marion County Common Pleas Court was received Friday from the third district court of appeals. The Appellate Court ruled the lower court was in error in not granting a new hearing of a damage suit.

The suit, actually two but heard as one here, was filed by Raymond Arthur Winters, a youth, against Robert C. Pence, and by Garland E. Winters, the boy's father, against Pence. A verdict in favor of the defendant was rendered previously.

The suits, for $25,042 75 and costs and $3,524.35 respectively, arose out of a traffic accident in Marion less than a year ago. The action was for personal injuries allegedly received by Raymond Winters, who was riding a bicycle when he was involved in a collision with a car driven by the defendant at the intersection of S. State St. and Pleasant St.

The plaintiff set forth seven assignments of error in the trial, and the court of appeals agreed two of these were in error and prejudicial to the plaintiff The two assignments judged in error related to testimony on stop streets and lawful speed in the area of the mishap.

Finding error in the admission of evidence, the Court of Appeals found the Common Pleas erred in overruling the plantiff's motion for a new hearing. The Court of Appeals called for a new hearing and procedings according to law.

treaty was extended to include Greece and Turkey at the eastern end of the Mediterranean

The U. S. decision to make a separate, practical arrangement with Franco came as a substitute for Spanish membership in NATO or for some other joint Allied arrangement.

Strategic Importance

The plan has strategic importance in at least two respects:

1. Spanish bases offer a reserve position for American air and naval forces behind the forward lines of Western European defenses, which are in Germany, and also provide additional lines of communication.

2. Spain could provide a kind of fallback position if the forward defense lines are never properly organized. For example, France has long delayed in ratifying a European army treaty which would let West Germany rearm within such an army.

Will Observe Anniversary Monday

Bucyrus YMCA To Note Founding 50 Years Ago

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS—The Bucyrus YMCA, an institution here for 50 years, will observe its golden anniversary with a dinner Monday night in the Shunk Parish House of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Nicholas T. Goncharoff, director of the Free Russian Exile Youth movement in New York City, and W. N. Dennison of Columbus, executive secretary of the Ohio-West Virginia area of the YMCA, will be the guest speaker. Mr Goncharoff was a Red Army tank commander during World War II and later was held as a prisoner of war by the Germans.

A feature of the banquet will be the presentation of life memberships to six Bucyrians, who have held continuous membership in the organization since it was founded in September, 1903. They include W. A. Blicke, president of the Bucyrus City Bank; James F. Hopley, retired newspaper publisher; S. E. Auck, secretary of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association; T C Kiess, who has been a director 40 years; R. B. Picking, manufacturer; and Joseph D. Wise, retired merchant.

Guests of honor will be Mr. Blicke, who was the organization's first treasurer and one of its charter directors; Mr. Hopley, the first vice president; and John Q. Shunk, retired manufacturer and philanthropist, who provided funds for remodeling the building in 1941 following a disastrous fire.

While the Y is marking its 50th anniversary in Bucyrus, 1953 also marks the 25th year the Edward B. Hagaman has served as its general secretary. Mr. Hagaman, a native of Norristown, Pa., came here in 1928 from Steubenville, where he was secretary of the Y. He and Mrs. Hagaman have two sons, Don, who is associated with the public relations department of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and Jack, general secretary of the YMCA at Sandusky.

The Y's first home, located on the present building's site, was given to the board by Mrs. Susan P. Kearsley, a member of a pioneer Bucyrus family, with the stipulation that "when it ceased to be used for the youth of Bucyrus, it was to become the property of the Ohio State YMCA." J. J. Bliss, school superintendent, was the organization's first president and O. E. Dee, its first general secretary.

In 1904, a financial campaign was held to raise $12,000 for building improvements, including a small gymnasium and two bowling alleys. Six years later, $15,000 was raised for enlargement of the gymnasium, construction of 16 new dormitory rooms, and two more bowling alleys.

In 1929, a $16,000 campaign for construction of a 20 by 60 foot swimming pool, replacing the bowling alleys, was conducted successfully.

After the 1941 fire, which caused a loss of $13,500, Mr. Shunk donated $22,000 for remodeling the building providing the directors raised $7,500 to pay off a long-standing mortgage on the building. The mortage was paid off and Mr. Shunk's gift was pooled with insurance funds to erect the present structure.

An endowment fund was established in 1947 and its resources now total $13,100, including gifts from John H Muth, Mrs. Sue Picking, Joseph H. Ulmer, all deceased, the C. W. Warnock and J. E. Faulkner charity funds, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Blicke, and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Picking.

YOUR HOME . . . Today and Tomorrow

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

Though our article today strays from home maintenance and repair nevertheless we feel this idea is well worth passing on

In our constant search for household items of real practical value we occasionally run across an innovation that departs from standard practice and produces very efficient results by taking advantage of well-known, but, in this particular use, hitherto untapped, basic principles

Grandma would use any flat surface with a folded sheet as an ironing surface for her stove-heated irons Later with padded boards came electric irons and then steam irons It was natural that the next improvement should be made in the ironing board One enterprising manufacturer hit upon the idea of using the principle of reflected heat to reduce ironing time and save on electric consumption

Simply the ironing fabric is covered with aluminum Tests show this aluminum coated fabric will reduce ironing time by 25 per cent save on electricity is scorch proof, waterproof and will outlast ordinary fabric by six to eight times It will not absorb dye from heavy fabrics as ordinary ironing pads will, enabling the housewife to iron any light-colored delicate fabric on the same board It is ideal for steam ironing

The do-it-yourself fan can easily apply the same principle to an existing ironing board and gain two of the above advantages reduced ironing time and reduced electrical consumption Merely tack aluminum foil next to the board and replace your usual ironing pad over it Of course to benefit by these other features—scorchproof stainproof and longer life of the ironing fabric—you would have to purchase the manufactured product It sells for less than $2

Multi-Purpose Rooms Now Popular

Activities of Teen-Agers Influence Home Designs

Teen-agers are now doing things to architecture and our houses To believe this (except for wear and tear) may be difficult for some of the youngsters' critics But there is plenty of evidence And this evidence may be of value to you if you are planning a new house or a remodeling job.

Consider the number of house plans you see nowadays with so called multipurpose rooms. These rooms are virtually second living rooms. Often they include a fireplace. Frequently they are paved with asphalt tile for heavy usage Informality is their keynote—something like the rumpus room of prohibition days.

Youth Gets Credit

Well, authorities blame—or credit the rambunctious teen-agers for bringing about the multipurpose room, for spurring the demand for finished basements and finished attics, for indirectly selling a lot of toughwearing floor coverings and acoustical ceiling materials.

For instance, W. Wadsworth Wood of Chicago, who knows a lot about trends in houses and ways of living, contends that teen-agers "will gather wherever they're made welcome—to sing, dance, hear music, talk and generally express their health and high spirits—whether it's a road house or your own home."

As publisher of Small Homes Guide and the new magazine, Home Modernizing, Wood has some very definite opinions on the influence the adolescent is exerting over architects He thinks the typical youngster has a "recognized right to stomp and holler and let off steam.

"For many home owners," he says, "the problem is not "Should we fix up a teenage room?" but rather 'Where' And how?' "

Problem for Handyman

Everybody doesn't have a basement, especially among the newer houses, and everybody doesn't have an attic, or a barn or garage to convert into a recreation hall, but Wood is convinced that some livable arrangement can be made. This can be a problem for the family handyman to solve.

In the current issue of Home Modernizing, Wood sets forth this view:

"You can turn over the kitchen and living room to the thundering herd while you and your wife go to the movies, or you can fix up a separate room that won't suffer from high-spirited activities, leaving your good furniture undisturbed, and leaving you and your wife as a controlling influence in the background."

Happy Hut Solution

An interesting solution to the problem of space, where no basement is available, is offered by Robert N Marling of Madison, Wis. The Marlings built a "Happy Hut' in their back yard. Measuring 26 by 23 feet, it comprises one big room with a fireplace, complete kitchen, television, coat closet and lavatory.

"When it outwears its usefulness as a playhouse," says Marling, "it can be converted into a guest room or two-car garage—when the kids are grown up and gone."

There's an eye to resale value for you, too. But in the meantime the Marlings seem to be getting their money's worth out of their Happy Hut.

"We celebrated its completion with a 16th birthday party," Mr. Marling says, "Since that time we have had many kid parties (and a few adult parties) climaxed by a crowd of over 150 teen-agers, cast and stage hands, after the high school play

Aid for the Ailing House

By ROGER WHITMAN

Q: Our neighbor informed us that the roof around our chimney was all black, as if it had been burning. I went out to see it and the shingles appeared to be scorched. There is flashing between the chimney and the scorched shingles. Is there need to worry?

A: A chimney in good condition would not cause shingles to become scorched or darkened by heat. Any material surrounding it would not be discolored. Either the flashing has corroded or the mortar joints between the brick are cracked or broken. I would advise making a very careful examination of the chimney Also make a test by placing tar paper, or some other material that gives off considerable smoke, in the furnace. When the material is burning, cover the top of the chimney and watch for smoke leaking through cracks and breaks in the brickwork.

Q: In one of your past articles you suggested that a grease trap be used in the line between the kitchen and the septic tank Can you tell me how to build a grease trap?

A: You could buy a grease trap for the purpose from your local dealer in plumbing goods However, if you wish to build one, get a copy of Farmers Bulletin, 1950, entitled Sewage and Garbage Disposal. To obtain this, send 10 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. Because of the limited space of the column, it is not possible for me to give you complete construction data

Q: We have a 20x20 garage workroom on which we want to lay asphalt tile The concrete floor, when it was laid, was made level by using a straight edge There was no further troweling The surface of this floor, while fairly level, is quite rough. Is there any preparation that would adhere to the cement to make it smooth and suitable for use under asphalt tile?

A: Dealers handling asphalt tile and other types of floor covering usually carry in stock a leveling compound that is troweled on the concrete to give a smooth level surface. Another method is to have a terrazzo contractor smooth the surface with a terrazzo grinding machine

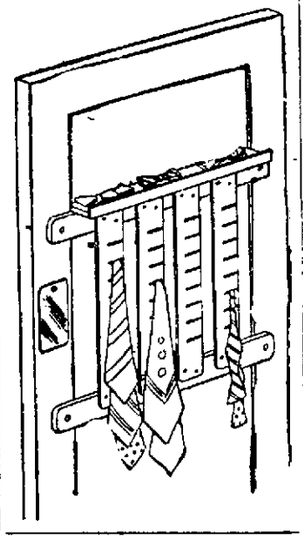
Closet Door Tie Rack Called Easy Home Workshop Project

A HOME CRAFTSMAN finds it easy to make the handy necktie rack sketched here for the back of a closet door. He can exercise ingenuity by adding branches to the four necktie ladders illustrated and by painting them to correspond with the color of ties.

For the average size panel door, four of the ladders can be spaced evenly. Each is 3 inches wide. The ladders are simply pieces of hardboard, 3-16 inch or 1-4 inch tempered pressed wood, into which are sawn 1-8 inch kerfs. The kerfs may be made with a dado saw or by cutting two close kerfs with a small-bladed keyhole saw and then chipping out the one end with a small chisel.



Screw the ladders, after the front edges have been "eased" with a sandblock or file, to two wooden crosspieces extending across the door from stile to stile.

Immediately above the top crosspiece, fasten a small wooden shelf fronted by a narrow strip of hardboard so that bow ties won't fall off when the door is shut.

A dime store mirror may be mounted on one side of the door to suit the height of the man with all the neckties.

The ensemble may be painted or enameled attractively, using a primer and then one or two finish coats. It would be simple to add an additional tie ladder on each side

Changing School Name Opposed by Machinists

Members of Machinists Lodge No. 1059, International Association of Machinists, in a regular meeting Thursday night went on record as opposing the changing of the name of the State Street Junior High School to Robert A. William E. Nester of Hornell, N. Y., Erie Railroad general chairman for the machinists, gave a report on the program of the general committee and discussed the current contract negotiations.

Manipulation Suspected in Rye Market

Canadian Grain Sold In U.S. at Apparent Loss, Senators Hear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators for the Senate Judiciary Committee set out today to learn why some Canadian-grown rye is being imported at a reported loss and who in this country buys it.

Committee Chairman Langer (R-ND) ordered the inquiry, expressing "suspicion" that one explanation might be illegal commodities market manipulation costing U. S. farmers millions of dollars.

Langer made public a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Benson last night. The letter quoted a campaign declaration by President Eisenhower to U. S. growers that their rye, oats and barley "should be given the same protection as available to the major cash crops."

Langer noted that Benson already has asked the Tariff Commission to consider imposing a quota on oats imports. He urged the secretary to take similar action at once in the case of rye and barley.

Langer said rye imports between July 1 and Sept. 10 this year ran to 2,326,000 bushels, compared to 579,000 bushels imported between July 1 and Sept. 11, 1952.

A committee staff member said it is asking the Commodities Exchange Authority and the Agriculture Department to comment on reports that at least some of the grain imported from Canada could be laid down in Chicago or Minneapolis receiving points only "at an apparent loss."

The staffer, declining to be named, said No. 3 Canadian western rye was quoted on the market at Winnipeg, Canada, at 97⅝ cents a bushel on Sept. 23. He estimated that it would cost 19 cents a bushel, in duty, currency diferential, insurance, loading and unloading costs to deliver that rye in Chicago, or a total of $1.16⅜. He said that would be several cents more per bushel than it would have cost the buyer to purchase U. S. grown rye on the same day in Chicago.

Below Average Soybean Crop Indicated Here

Early reports on the soybean situation in Marion County indicate that the crop may fall a little below the level reached last year Lack of rain in the growing season has been blamed for the most part by persons who commented on the situation

A spokesman for the Marion Grain and Supply Co, however said it is still too early to get a general picture of the situation He said some beans have been brought into the elevator already These, he said, seemed to be in good condition but not enough have been received to give a good indication of the overall crop

He said most of the early beans should start arriving in the elevator Monday From then on they will probably continue to be brought in for three or four weeks

W L Williams of the Soil Conservation Service predicted the bean crop will be a little below average

Those farmers who planted their beans early will have good harvests he said while those who were a little late will be disappointed

He explained that the early plantings had the benefit of the rains which fell during the early weeks of the season The late planters though, missed the rains and then were hit hard by the drought which threatened for a time to destroy most of the crop.

Driver Dies of Heart Attack After Accident

CLEVELAND (AP)—John Glowik, a 61-year-old cafe owner, died last night—apparently of a heart attack—shortly after a 5-year-old youngster ran into the side of his car.

The youngster, James Smith, was taken to a hospital with a bad cut over his left eye and a possible skull fracture.

Glowik asked policemen to take him to the hospital to see the boy and on the way complained of a severe headache. He slumped into unconsciousness while still in the patrol car and was declared dead on arrival at the hospital.
